G. Discussion of Designating the Aurora Area Convention and Visitors Bureau as the County's tourism representative

Cort Carlson, the director of the Aurora Area Convention and Visitors Bureau, introduced himself to the committee. The Aurora Area Convention and Visitors Bureau functions as the tourism bureau for Oswego, Plano, Yorkville, and ten additional municipalities in the region. AACVB's promotional efforts also encompass attractions in unincorporated Kendall County, including Keller's Farmstand. Supporting the County's emerging Agri-tourism sector is one of the many economic development initiatives the County is pursuing, which could greatly benefit from a continued partnership with AACVB, given that these attractions are already integrated into their regional strategy.

AACVB is financed through a portion of local hotel/motel tax revenues and allocations from the State's Local Tourism and Convention Bureau Program grant funds, which consider population size as part of their criteria. Should the County decide to designate AACVB as its tourism representative, it would receive credit for the unincorporated population within the County. Notably, since the County does not collect any hotel/motel tax, this designation would incur no financial cost.

Staff recommend authorization to issue a letter designating the AACVB as the County's tourism representative.
